

Story of a Love, written by Valentino Nioi
- edited portfolio excerpt -

EXT. BUSY ROAD - DAY

It's drizzling. Grey clouds soften every color around the city.

The sidewalks are crowded with people carrying black umbrellas.

Dark clothes. Dark cars.

Only one vibrant detail stands out:

A green LED display near a shop:

35°C - 3:50 PM

Above the store, on a window stands a BOY, 22.

A raven watches him from the windowsill.

INT. BOY'S BEDROOM - CONTINUOUS

The room is dusty and cluttered.

On one wall, several instant photographs are arranged in a perfect grid.

Every picture is blank.

Except for one empty spot.

The Boy grabs his old camera.

Two films left.

He leaves.

EXT. SHOPPING ROAD - DAY

Light rain.

The Boy notices a white long-haired cat near an orchard and takes a picture.

FLASH.

The photograph ejects.

Wind immediately blows it away.

He picks it up.

Words slowly emerge from the grey surface:

"How small a thought it takes to fill a whole life."

The Boy stares at it.

His watch:

4:00 PM

The second hand stops.

Metallic noises erupt around him.

Reality begins disappearing piece by piece.

EXT. MYSTIC APPLE ORCHARD

The city is gone.

Red ground.

Endless trees full of fruit.

Blue night sky.

Snow melting before touching the ground.

Above him:

04:00

Gigantic glowing numbers embedded in the sky.

The Boy looks around.

Silence. A weir castle far.

INT. CASTLE - LATER

A small doghouse.

A green sign:

"NUGGET"

Inside, a small dog sleeps.

The dog opens his eyes.

Recognizes him instantly.

Runs toward him.

The Boy kneels.

Tears appear.

THE BOY

Nuggie...

The dog jumps on him, licking his face frantically.

The Boy laughs.

THE BOY (CONT'D)

Okay, okay—wait a second.

He places the camera nearby.

They take a picture together.

A loud metallic sound.

Both freeze.

A gigantic ROBOT enters the room.

Slow.

Massive.

Mechanical.

It notices the Boy, grabbing him by the neck.

ROBOT

I don't know why you are already here. There has probably been some mistake. You cannot have your picture yet. You cannot touch your dog anymore. You may only have your camera back.

The robot let the boy fall and camera materializes on his hands hands.

Nugget bursts to grabs the photograph with his mouth.

ROBOT (CONT'D)

Don't you dare—

The dog runs.

Chaos.

Moments later the Boy catches him and takes the photo.

They embrace.

The robot grabs him by the neck.

THE BOY
How small a thought it takes to fill a whole life...
(beat)
Small as a nugget.

The robot throws the boy to the sky.

FADE TO BLACK.

INT. BOY'S BEDROOM - DAY

The Boy places the photograph in the empty space on the wall.

The image shows him and Nugget together.

As he walks away—

The other grey photographs slowly restore themselves.

END OF EXCERPT